Urinary tract infections (UTIs) are a very common health problem. While both men and women get UTIs, women are more prone to them.

A UTI occurs when the bladder and its exit tubes are infected by bacteria. Some of the causes are sexual intercourse, waiting too long to urinate, pregnancy, menopause, and diabetes.

(<https://www.top10homeremedies.com/wp-content/uploads/2013/02/urinary-tract1.jpg>)

Common symptoms include a frequent urge to urinate, passing small quantities of urine, a burning sensation when urinating, change in urine color, abdominal pain, fever, nausea, and vomiting.

Immediate treatment is necessary so that the infection does not cause damage to the kidneys. In addition to the conventional treatment, many natural remedies can help prevent and treat UTIs.

Here are the top 10 home remedies for urinary tract infections.

Urinary Tract Infection (UTI) - Home Remedies

(Out of the 10, we have covered 3 highly effective home remedies in this video as well.)

1. Apple Cider Vinegar

Apple cider vinegar is a rich source of enzymes, potassium and other useful minerals that can prevent the bacteria that cause UTIs from multiplying or growing. Those suffering from UTIs can use apple cider vinegar as a natural antibiotic to treat the infection.

1. Add two tablespoons of apple cider vinegar to a glass of water. You can also add lemon juice and sweeten with honey. Mix it well.
2. Drink this two times a day for a few days.

2. Indian Gooseberry (Amla)

Indian Gooseberry is rich in vitamin C which in turn inhibits the growth of bacteria.

(https://www.top10homeremedies.com/wp-

content/uploads/2013/02/urinary-tract-Inf-copy-UTI-home-remedy.jpg)

1. Take a cup of water.
2. Add one teaspoon of Indian gooseberry (amla) powder and one teaspoon of turmeric powder.
3. Boil the solution until half the water evaporates.
4. Drink the residue three times a day for three to five days.

You can also eat more fruits like lemons, oranges, bananas, guava, kiwi, melon, raspberries, tomatoes, and papaya that contain a good amount of vitamin C (<https://www.top10homeremedies.com/news-facts/top-10-essential-nutrients-body.html>).

3. Cranberry Juice

Certain compounds like proanthocyanidins found in cranberries prevent bacteria from reaching the walls of the urethra and causing UTIs. Cranberry juice also has a very mild antibiotic affect.

- Drinking half a glass of cranberry juice daily is one of the easiest ways to prevent urinary tract infections.
- Those suffering from a UTI should drink about three to four glasses of cranberry juice daily to prevent the infection from causing damage to the kidneys.

You must drink unsweetened cranberry juice. You can mix it with apple juice to enhance the taste.

Warning: Do not take cranberry juice if you have a history of kidney stones.

4. Baking Soda

Baking soda will raise the acid-base balance of acidic urine and give you relief from the pain. Neutralizing the acidity in the urine also will help speed up recovery. Simply add one teaspoon of baking soda to a glass of water and drink it once or twice a day.

5. Tea Tree Oil

Tea tree oil has antibacterial properties (<https://www.top10homeremedies.com/how-to/get-rid-blind-pimple.html>) to help fight the bacteria that cause bladder infections like UTIs.

- Mix 10 drops of tea tree oil in your bath water and use this water to wash the urethra opening.
- Alternatively, you can mix tea tree oil with equal amounts of juniper oil and sandalwood oil and rub this mixture on the abdominal region and on the area near the bladder. This is very effective in reducing pain associated with UTIs. Follow this remedy once daily for three to four days.
- Another simple way to treat UTI is to soak in warm bath water mixed with two teaspoons of plain yogurt and six drops of tea tree oil. Do this daily for 10 minutes for about 10 days.

6. Blueberries

Blueberries have bacteria-inhibiting properties that can help in the treatment of UTIs. The antioxidants present in blueberries are good for the immune system, and they prevent growth of bacteria that causes UTIs.

- You can add some fresh blueberries to your favorite cereal and have it for breakfast.
- You can also make fresh blueberry juice and have it daily, in the morning and at night for quick results. Do not add any artificial sweetener to the juice.

Including fresh blueberries or juice in your daily diet is a good way to prevent UTIs, too.

I tried the cranberry juice, pineapple juice, other sources of vitamin C. Advil just masked the pain for awhile until it came back stronger than before. Soon my UTI developed into a very painful lower back ache on both sides for days that made it impossible to sleep (this I mistakenly ignored because it was also my time of month). Then the fever started, which turned into *violent chills so that I could not even walk or get warm. My body needed to be warm but my burning head needed cooling. The only thing that helped me feel better was to put a dampened cold cloth on my burning head and put every cover I could find on my freezing body. I finally went to a doctor who rightly scolded me for not coming in sooner. I wasn't an actual employee of the center so after running a Urine analysis that definitely affirmed it was a UTI, she sent me to a great local medical center that takes walk-ins (an E.R. room would've been too long a wait, she said). The doctor was great, he gave me antibiotics, very strong ibuprofen for the pain, and another pain killer. THIS ALL HAPPENED on holiday in Switzerland! The Swiss system did not fail me. I am writing this because I don't wish this pain on anybody else. If serious symptoms develop, don't waste time, go to a doctor. And hopefully the doctor will be good enough to do something about it (I hate to get sent home with come back 3 days later if it isn't better!). Best wishes.

I forgot to mention, I also drank lots of water. And it's true that any fizzy or carbonated drinks will make things worse. I currently have a painful bloated stomach as a result of mistakenly having carbonated drinks (juice) in this period.

Very good to drink as well are aronia and blackcurrant juices – both loaded with vitamin C, that prevents bacteria from propagating. And drink, drink, drink a lot, preferably water or diluted juices mentioned in the article. Absolutely no caffeine. And best just go to the doctor as soon as you can; the pain that might develop is just not worth it. And yeah, no ibuprofen for pain, can bugger up your kidneys.

Can you have cranberry juice if it's sugar free? How about sugar free yogurt? Most important one is drinking as much water as you can. You really need to speak with a doctor or pharmacist to find out if there is an alternative antibiotic you can have. Hope something works for you. Best of luck.

Try fresh plain fruit with no sweeteners at all. Sugar free juices have artificial sweeteners, which according to article, you should avoid. Use the fresh fruit as part of your regular diet. Unfortunately, if you're like me and cannot deal with high acid fruits, then that wouldn't work either. I tried the baking soda/water mixture right now. So far it's working! I just hope it stays that way until I can get into a Drs office in a few days.

I have had multiple uti's in the past 2 years. Most of the time I end up going to the doctor to get a antibiotic. I am so tires of being on an antibiotic and I'm ready to try the more natural way of getting rid of this "no fun" infection! I have upped my water intake and cranberry intake and already feel the difference! Tonight I'm trying the tea tree bath along with the apple cider drink, blueberry tea,hot pad,and baking soda. Can't wait to see more results!

I am stunned but 2 hours after trying a few of these suggestions I am feeling so much better. I am on day 2 of feeling symptoms of a UTI. I'm not at the point of seeing a Dr. yet but I came online looking for information just like this.

I drank the baking soda with water as well as the vinegar/honey with water. I only had canned pineapple but I figured a couple rings couldn't hurt. I also took an ester C vitamin and drank an extra glass of water for good measure.

The sensation to urinate went away after about 30mins with only a mild discomfort of lower abdomen pain. I thought maybe it was mind over matter but now that it's been 2 hours and I was able to urinate without any burning sensation or the feeling of not having emptied my bladder... I'm sure that it's not all in my head but that these measures really worked.

Thank you for the great information and I would encourage anyone else to give these suggestions a try!

Actually, there are quite a few studies that indicate that cranberry juice does help prevent urinary tract infections, which is why I mentioned drinking it as one of the things a woman can do to avoid getting a UTI in the first place. I was not suggesting foregoing proper treatment and drinking cranberry juice instead once someone already has a UTI, obviously once someone has a UTI, proper medical help is needed.

Georgia August 25, 2016 at 9:50 am

When u take antibiotics you also need to eat live culture yogurt. When you take antibiotics they kill the bad but they also kill the good bacteria. Soon then you can't fight off another infection right away .A spoonful of live cultures a couple times a day helps.

Hi, I keep getting UTI'S and they are miserable. I have been using kefir on a tampon and that has helped. I need to drink more water I know. I am going to try the baking soda in water and the ACV in water too. I am addicted to kombucha and I think the carbonation is not helping my problem, but I love it. I really love that people are getting relief without antibiotics..it is so much better than the side effects of antibiotics. I'm doing a liver cleanse starting tomorrow and I hope this will not aggravate my UTI. Thank you so much, this has been very helpful.

I went two days ago to see my GP about pain with passing urine as I just had an operation two weeks ago. GP said it was from the catheter I had. He tested my urine and said it is mild UTI. He suggested while I am waiting for my result to come within a week. I need to take some antibiotic. He gave cephalexin to take 2x a day. I took one that evening and one the next morning. Since I took it I had ongoing headache, on and off chest pain, on and off chill, weakness that I sleep the whole next day. I felt sick than before I took this antibiotic. I searched the cephalexin and found that possibly he gave me too much dose which was 500mg to take twice a day. I contacted the nurse to let the GP know about my side effect. Nurse suggested to stop taking the antibiotic and GP will contact sometimes yesterday evening or today which this is afternoon and I havent heard from my GP. I feel much better since I stopped the antibiotic all side effects gone when I woke up this morning. The only good thing I found was a slight change to my pain with passing urine but the side effect was horrible . I am now trying apple cidar vinegar just an hour ago. I will see how I go. However I still feel pain with passing urine this morning and chill on and off but no fever.Fingers cross that cidar vinager will help.

Baking Soda works if your body has enough vitamin C. Without the vitamin C you'll just be drinking the baking soda without any effect. Be careful not to drink too much baking soda as it can give you serious stomach aches (build up of gases)

I had a severe UTI brewing, went to the toilet 10 times in one hour and was dreading going through a whole night. Was really worried it would reach my kidneys as it had done once before. Thought I would try the baking soda, I put two teaspoons in a glass of water, noticed a difference within an hour! Did the same four hours later before I went to bed, was up only once during the night and definitely a significant difference with the pain! Highly recommend trying this. I am feeling heaps better today!!!

I'm so glad to know there are so many home remedies can help to cure uti. I will try these remedies. BTW, i'm taking a herbal medicine called diuretic and anti-inflammatory pill now, hope these are helpful.

Well, I'm 17..Firstly, I was living the wrong way knowing my dad is a pastor! Having sex drinking, &smoking sometimes! Anyway after sex last week, I got a strange feeling and I had no idea what it was when I pee so I thought nothing of it ! However mMonday morning, there was pain when I pee so I googled "it hurts when I pee" then I seen it, boom! You may have a uti! I thought "nooo god, not me!" So I looked up home remedies BC I didn't want to go to the Dr. For a series of other reasons, but I tried the baking soda & acv, which worked wonders so I thought! I prayed evey day that god take this pain away but I realized my prayer wasn't as genuine as I thought! I don't think I had enough faith! Until yesterday Saturday morning, all the scriptures I read had the number 7 in it (the number of completion!)& one day in the week I was praying in my room &my light came on, so in conclusion I knew he would turn darkness to light &this will end on day 7!! Saturday evening I was in the shower praying to god pleading that he heal me, after I got out the song by Georgia mass choir song come on in the room came on, so I got in my "room" the closet as the woman did on the song and called for Dr Jesus! After that the song came on by john p. Kee, he's able to keep you! Which was confirmation to me as I looked up in my closet and seen the number 702 on a box!!!!!!the number 7! So that night I didn't take any account or baking soda b I trusted god , I even had some ice cream! I slept great! I got up at 4and the symptoms were GONE! Even today, Sunday, the 7th day I thank god for my healing! Just wanted to share my testimony!!!!!!!

Did you think after unprotected sex, it may not be a UTI? It could be an STD, which can eventually kill you if left untreated. God lets us reap what we sow. Reading all the "seven" verses, looking for "signs and wonders", like the lights coming on and that song coming on, and the number seven included on a box, are not ways to get God to stop it from getting you. Perhaps what you need is to go to a doctor and tell him/her you are having unprotected sex, and need to learn how to protect yourself from yourself. No amount of using religion as an amulet to ward off the evil spirits will work. God is not a magician, don't use Him as such. Read your Bible with an understanding to doing His word, not with a heart towards just getting what you want at any given time. And respect yourself. But, DO go to the doctor, and maybe tell your mother. And good luck.

Carole, I enjoy having unprotected sex, I've enjoyed it for the past four years. I believe once I married my husband we were each others whole world and protection is a necessity to people who have one permanent sex partner. I am a happy Christian and take my blessings as they come and I work my way through my problems knowing God is there and he's not the answer to everything. I have great medical insurance but think it's a last resort to fill my body with drugs when there are so many natural ways. Things like blue berrys have been around for thousands of years and have always been food. God has taken care of his children in many ways in secrecy and you mean to scorn his love for man kind. You need to read your Bible with an understanding to doing his word. Good day!

Scriptures have nothing to do with feeling better. If all you did was pray and tried none of the above remedies, your symptoms would probably be getting worse right now. You feel better because you decided to try some natural remedies. You did that, not god. I am glad you are feeling better but please don't rely on prayer to cure you. You need to take better care of yourself and start by getting tested for sexually transmitted infections if you are having unprotected sex. Have your partner tested too if you want to keep having unprotected sex with him. Use a condom if you want to have different sexual partners as this is the only proven way to prevent std's/sti's short of abstinence. Most sti's/std's have the same symptoms as a uti or none at all. Please don't be so naive, learn from your mistakes and be more careful in the future.

Honestly, carole and stacy are completely wrong. Sure, Jesus does not want you to go out and have sex and sin. but His grace and love will make up for your wrong decisions. Jesus Christ IS the ultimate physician. His scriptures tell us that He will heal us, but it is all about our faith and belief in His healing. When we accept The Lord into our hearts, He gives us the power of healing, through Him. This way, we don't have to beg God for healing, because when Jesus died on the cross, he took our sickness with Him. We simply pray, "Lord, I know that this is an attack from Satan, and I am already healed. I rebuke the enemy, and praise Your name, Jesus. I believe that I am already healed, by Your stripes." And porknbeans, when the deciever sends people like carol and Stacy your way, just keep praising God!

Neighbor Ed August 3, 2014 at 1:53 pm

An old time minister by the name of Billie Sunday used to say, "People have a tendency of burning the candle of life for the devil, and when they about to die they blow the smoke out in God's face." The reason bad things generally happen is not because God doesn't care, but rather because He gave us our moral agency which permits us to make choices, both good and bad, and to choose between good and evil. If we choose to do things which are contrary to His laws, ordinances, and commandments, then we can expect to reap what we sow. STD's are just one of those consequences, but some things, such as UTI's are related to the fact that we are mortal beings living in a mortal world where bad things happen even to good people. It always amazes me when something bad happens, or someone gets caught doing something they should not be doing, (this especially applies to politicians), the first thing they do is to either blame God, or call it "a mistake." What they really mean is that they got caught in the act and it's embarrassing for them to have to publically admit their secret sins. UTI's can come from STD, or it can be caused by any number of things such as bacteria picked up from unclean restrooms, not cleaning one's self properly after having a stool, hand to hand contact (that's why hand washing is especially important), being exposed to spores transmitted by other human carriers, etc. It is not something that should be deferred or put off until you become so miserable you don't know what to do with yourself. God "is a God of miracles," but He is also a God of laws, ordinances, and commandments, and He expects us to be obedient to them; however, if we choose to do as we quite well please then we must reap what we sow. You cannot have it both ways. UTI's or STD's that go untreated can cause serious consequences, even death.

Sometimes they need to be treated with antibiotics because that is the only way of dealing with them; however, you should also be aware that some antibiotics (especially Ciprofloxacin) can also create other problems such as Clostridium Difficile (also known as C-Diff), which is very contagious and it can even kill you if left untreated. There are those who mock God because He allows bad things to happen to people, but usually bad things happen because He gave us our moral agency to make choices, and sometimes the choices we make have dire consequences, and it has nothing to do with God except for the natural laws that are imposed upon us as mortal beings. Since we choose to ignore those laws, and to exercise our free will or moral agency to do as we quite well please, then we can expect bad results. We are fortunate to be living in an age where we have access to have trained medical professionals, so called miracle drugs and numerous medications, and various methods and procedures for diagnosing some of these problems and to obtain cures for many diseases. UTI's and STD's are not something you can afford to put off doing something about. You need to contact a urologist or an infectious disease doctor immediately so they can conduct various lab tests, and get you the necessary treatment you need as soon as possible. The longer you delay, the more complicated it will be to obtain relief or a cure. They may have to use antibiotics, which in and of themselves can create another whole new set of problems you have to deal with, and you can expect several months of having to cope with the constant pain, aggravation, and the inconvenience of wearing Depends or other padding because you can no longer control your urinary problems. Sometimes, God expects us to use a little commonsense. Like I said, He is a God of miracles, but He also expects us to behave ourselves in a manner that are consistent with His standards, which are totally the opposite of mankind which appeals to our carnal, sensual, and devilish ways. If you need help find a good doctor and get the kind of treatment you need right away. Home remedies can and do occasionally help some people, and it may alleviate some of the UTI problems you have, but if you have a case bad bacteria growing in your bladder, or you have some sexually transmitted disease you need to see a doctor right away, and the sooner the better. Good luck, and God bless.

Chelly, if Christ could do an eyeroll right now, He would. Illness doesn't come from Satan, it comes from genetics, abuse of the body and microscopic invaders called viruses and bacteria. Read—faith without works is dead. He never promised He would remove every little sniffle from our lives. What he did promise was that if we lived good lives and maintained faith with good works, then we would be exalted. Your remarks make a mockery of God and every person who has suffered on this planet. The bible references that leaves of plants should be used as medicine. I believe the hope is....that as a collective people, we share the historical knowledge in natural healing. I believe He knew that the medical industry would become so corrupt that he would provide alternatives. This is not to say that modern medicine is unnecessary. I believe the hand of God rests on many physician's shoulder. In a nutshell...we are our brother's keeper. We are meant to pass on our knowledge to each other.....not to ask God to remove every ailment in our lives.

The article is missing one important natural remedy: yogurt. Yogurt has natural good bacteria that your body needs to fight infections. Eating a cup or two of yogurt everyday in conjunction with eating blueberries, drinking cranberry juice and most importantly, drinking as much water as you can help treat mild cases of UTIs. However, if you have blood in your urine, you should get yourself on antibiotics immediately because that means it will soon enter your kidneys which could lead to a kidney infection and that is potentially life threatening if left untreated. If you have a fever, nausea and/or vomiting along with back pain with the other typical UTI symptoms, you could already have a kidney infection and need antibiotics. These remedies should only be used on their own for MILD cases of UTIs. If it's more severe, antibiotics are needed otherwise, you are putting your health at risk.

I live in Canada so seeing a doctor for me is free. Every citizen pays extra taxes to have free health care but to me this is better than wondering whether or not I should go to the doctor when I'm sick. If I need to see a doctor, I see one. I had blood in my urine so I got antibiotics immediately. Only thing I have to pay for is the antibiotic which is Macrobid in my case. Cost of the antibiotic was around $15 so very affordable. Penicillin is even cheaper but I'm allergic. I have friends in the states who will purposely cross the border to be seen by a doctor in Canada because it's apparently significantly cheaper than it would be for them to see a local doctor. Medications here are not marked up nearly as much as in the U.S. I truly empathize for anyone who does not see a doctor because they feel they can't afford to. No one should ever have put their health at risk.

@Stacy, I'm not sure how Americans can cross over for 'medical tourism' without confronting problems. Isn't assumed that if a person is seeing a Canadian doctor and they are American or from the US that they are simply seeing medical help at a cheaper price?? You should be drinking at least half your body weight in oz of water. So if you weigh 160 lbs, then yes you would need 10 8 oz cups of water. That's 80 oz a day. Hope that makes sense. Most people don't drink enough and don't realize they are dehydrated.

I had to use the bathroom really bad and I held it in for a veryyy long time. When I finally went to go use the rest room there was blood in my urine. I had no idea what was going on. I finally found out what was wrong and now I am trying these AT HOME remedies. I am 17 so I can't just get up and go to the DR. I don't feel like telling any of my family members. I know my UTI is more severe but I think this should work. I have not experienced any pain at all. Only just that there is blood -_- That freaks me out and I'm trying to get it cleared up. I'm doing the vitamin C, extra water, apple cider vinegar, and baking powder.

I've read a lot of the home remedy answers and many of them have worked for me in the past. I am an RN and do understand the value of both some of the home remedies and also, the need to see an MD if symptoms don't subside within a couple of days. But, in your case, see a doctor immediately. Blood in the urine is not something to put off. Your family will be much more negatively affected if they find that you had a problem that could have been addressed if treated early enough, rather than spare them whatever it is that you are concerned about. If you were my daughter, i would absolutely want to know and be given the opportunity to help you. Please talk to them or at least see a school nurse if you have one available to you. This is serious.

On the onset of my UTI two days ago, I drank an 8 oz. glass of water with 2 tsps. of baking soda in the morning. Throughout the morning I was feeling fine until around noon. I was getting the UTI Pain in my bladder after relieving myself. Since I was at work I had no access to more baking soda. During lunch I went to my local drug store and purchased AZO (maximum strength to relieve UTI Pain) and within 20 min the pain was gone. BUT, AZO is just to relieve the UTI Pain, not to treat the UTI itself. (Must warn you, the AZO makes your urine orange in color).

However, after searching the internet for more home remedies, I read that Apple Cider Vinegar (with Mother) mixed with 8 oz. of water is very beneficial. Because of its acids, when you drink this mixture 3 times a day along with more water, it flushes out the bacteria very quickly everytime you urinate because it is so potent. I strongly believe that this is the more natural antibiotic. I have been drinking this mixture for a day and a half now and it has been a life saver.

Hoping these remedies are helping you all out!!

Hi, I am so glad I stumbled upon your site while trying to read up on UTI... and the whole works. I was looking for alternative cures.

I had a relapse after a dose of antibiotics 3 weeks back. I do have my reservations for antibiotics but sometimes you don't have timely options. Now I am on a vaginal estrogen, for UTI caused by hormonal changes, according to my gyny.

However, aside from things beyond my control, in my case I must say..the additional reasons could also be due to the habit of not drinking enough water, low fibre diet, neglecting health routines,etc.

TQ for the comments...its interesting & helpful. I shall try out some of the natural/folk remedies given.

The minute I even THINK I may have UTI, I start chugging pineapple juice. If it really feels bad, I get a giant pineapple smoothie from Smoothie King. Its a small miracle when you need relief and FAST. I also take Antioxidants (Quercetin w/ Ester C) and Alka Seltzer morning and night. The Alka Seltzer works bc of the baking soda. Of course, if the infection isn't gone within a day or two, it is time for antibiotics bc your UTI can spread and you'll end up with a kidney infection.

I have had recurrent UTIs for years.. Usually resorted to antibiotics to get rid of. Even taking a low dose antibiotic before sex to prevent. I tried d mannose and that seemed to help. I recently had a UTI that was treated with a 10 day course of antibiotics, and the symptoms were lessened but remained.. The funny feeling you get when you know one is coming on, slight burning.. Etc.. Subsequent cultures were negative for Uti.. Very frustrating to have all the symptoms and no infection and not knowing what to do..

I firmly believe my bladder was inflamed from the antibiotic use..

I went on acididophillis twice daily, drank warm lemon water twice a day..took tumeric powder pills three times a day (tumeric is a huge anti-inflammatory)

Along with once a day Acv with water..

For anyone who was having symptoms but no infection, give this a try..

It took more then a month.. But I finally feel nearly 100% normal

I will do anything possible to avoid antibiotic use in the future and find a natural way to treat UTIs..hope this helps someone with similiar concerns..:)

Beth it sounds like IC. Interstitial cystitis. I have IC and the AZO is the best for me because there is no infection. The bladder wall itself is inflamed. Stay away from diet drinks and things with artificial sweeteners (i.e. aspartame), ginger, alcohol, prolonged periods of holding your urine (long car rides with no breaks), and always use a lubricant for sexual intercourse regardless. Again.... If you are SURE there is no infection but you have recurring pain it might be IC.

The 'natural remedy' world needs to meet the hard-science world when it comes to UTI's. Treating a UTI has everything to do with which microbe you're trying to kick.

If you have an e-coli infection, D-Mannose, cranberry pills, and tons of water work great to wash out the infection. Cystex tablets also help.

However, if you're working with a gram positive bacteria like staph saprophyticus, it's a whole different ball game. You can't just wash saprophyticus out. You must actively kill it. You can do this by taking curcumin, turmeric, or forskolin which raise the cAMP levels in your immune system. cAMP kills gram positive bacteria by creating pores in bacteria cell membrane walls. Substances that directly hurt staph are onions, raw garlic and paprika. So eating raw onions, garlic and 'shoving it up there' may help. You can keep gram positive bacteria infections from getting worse by keeping the pH of your urine high by drinking baking soda water. This inhibits the bacteria from creating slimy biofilms, but doesn't completely kill bacteria cultures.

A lot of times women get reinfected with the same bacteria, so simply diagnosing which strain goes a long way towards treating it for years.

A UTI is a physical infection. A person's faith is a personal matter. Not sure why a rather unkind religious debate needed to get started over this.

D-Mannose is such a great treatment for me. Works most of the time on the pain within 1/2 an hour, although I do the whole course and take it for several days. I drink a glass of water every half hour. I also drink unsweetened blueberry juice if I can get it or unsweetened cranberry juice, both mixed into water. No sugary foods for several days. This regimen works every time.

I didn't know about pineapple or baking soda or vinegar. Thanks for those suggestions.

I hate UTS's! They're painful and disrupt your entire life. Right now I'm trying the baking soda and water mixture and I've been pleasantly surprised by how fast it started working! Within 30 minutes the pain, cramping and backache were almost totally gone. These symptoms, along with the frantic back and forth trips to the bathroom have kept me up all night. I was actually able to get almost 2 hrs sleep! I wonder just how long it'll work? I know it says to take it 1-2 times a day but my body processes things so fast that I might try up to 3 times a day.

So far I have been reading over and over that your body should be kept acidic in order to prevent UTI's from coming back, and now I am very confused by some of the posts left here – that people take baking soda to alleviate or prevent UTI's! It just doesn't make sense. If you're being advised to drink cranberry juice or apple cider to keep your body acidic, then how could mixing baking soda in water be helpful in this case – knowing that baking soda is highly basic? I think that baking soda would actually make the infection get worse. Please correct me if I'm wrong.

I gather that Cider Vinegar and the other things go from Acid to Alkaline. Usually ACV will cause the urine pH to be acid after taking this a couple of hours, usually upon the first or second urination after drinking apple cider vinegar, thereafter the next day it tends to become more alkaline from the minerals provided in the apple cider vinegar, hence the controversy. And the same thing seems to happen with both ascorbic acid vitamin C, citric acid, vinegar and apple cider vinegar.

M a 12 weeks pregnant and suffering from uti from few after I conceived .it was so severe that I was not even able to sit properly.consulted doctor nothing worked, my husband said let's visit another doctor...which I dint want and looked over the internet and fortunately found this site.

Amazingly I had a cup of Indian gooseberry today morning for empty stomach believe me I am 70% recovered in a day.

Amla juice worked wonderfully m so happy.

Just separate tyre seeds an make juice of it as little salt and drink.

I even tried baboon soda which dint work on me.

Guys those who suffering with this problem better try this once before you consult, if doesn't work then move ahead especially for pregnant ladies taking allopathy isn't always good.

I know this is a women's forum but I'm a married faithful guy who gets prostate infections quite often. My wife is a diabetic and suffered from UTI's and yeast for years until she got her sugar under control and it would spread to me (love her anyways dispute the skin getting burned off you know what) LOL. I know what you woman go through now.

Anyways I get UTIs periodically now. Has there been any research on if this works in men too and potentially revealing UTI from prostate yeast infections. They have been giving constant cipro treatments but it seems like this just beats it back for a while and it comes back. I'm convinced its a very stubborn yeast infection that is nested in the prostate that gives me my bladder issues.

Mike...frequent toilet visits, especially at night, may mean an enlarged prostate..something very common in men as they get older. This is easily treated by a visit to your doctor. In some men, it can mean prostate cancer, so you should ask your doctor for a P.S.A. test, which is easily done with a blood test. The prostate and bladder are right next to each other, so an enlarged prostate will press upon the bladder..hence the frequent toilet visits. Good luck.

All of these suggestions are great, and they do make you FEEL better, but you do not GET better....UTI is very serious & anyone who is going through one, should definitely seek medical care, either with your primary physician, or a walk-in clinic. If left untreated, the infection could move into your kidneys. Best to get everything over with quickly with the 3-day antibiotic regiment.

easy for you to say evidently, but i beg to differ with u miss!! i have been fighting a UTI since 2-3-16 and becuz i am low tolerant to any medication and mostly all foods because of past drug abuse, the so called 'DOCTORS' that can help most all people 'CAN NOT' and have not been able to help me one bit, so please dont come on here like u know everyone and everyone's situation! each of us is different, that is why there are so many on here trying to help one another, cuz what dont work for one of us, might just work for another and i find all of this very refreshing—to know that i am not the only one who cant take so called 'doctors' meds and be healed!! And i am in the process right now—fighting for my life cuz i have not been able to beat this monster inside me—and for 2 days now i have been drinking 1/4 tsp baking soda in 1/2 cup of water and so far it seems to keep the UTI at bay, so those of u that pray—PLEASE pray that i will finally get the answer to my prayers and the healing i have begged for since this started many months ago, and yes, i know—we r not suppose to beg our Creator either, but when u r screaming and crying in pain and feel like for the 1000th time in a yr, u feel like u r dying, one would say just about anything and we wont even get into what else i have said to Him as well—matter of fact, i am surprised i am typing this to u right now! Please have a blessed one and how ever any of u get healed from this monster, PLEASE post till your hearts content—cuz a dying person such as myself, sure needs all the help I can get!!! God/Yh bless and keep all of you safe and healthy—i pray!!!

I personally know several women who have died due to not getting help for their UTI, they became septic and then a coma and then died. So I run not walk to the nearest bladder doc.

I do appreciate this site, I am taking antibiotics, I am also going to try several of your suggestions due they keep coming back.. I think this is due not being completely cured by antibiotics. I also read a book Healthy Healing by Linda Paige. It also has helpful hints for certain foods to avoid etc. good book to look into for many health issues.

I don't want to bother about going to the doctor, so I tried the baking soda remedy. So far, it's relieving the pain.

The last time I had a UTI, the doctor prescribed me an antibiotic in which I ended up being severely allergic to, and actually damaged my liver. Now, I will do all I can to avoid getting "help" from that sector. So far the baking soda and water seems to help...along with drinking loads of water.

I have been prone to Urinary Tract Infections my whole life. I've probably tried every home remedy that I could find out on the market today! DO NOT drink Cranberry Cocktail—theres a lot of sugar in it and it will just aggravate your condition further.) Cranberry Juice has a dry taste for me, so I haven't always been a huge fan of

The Lady Soma cranberry Concentrate is a great alternative – I take it in the morning when I take my regular vitamins. I have made it part of my regular routine so that my body is prepared if another Urinary Tract Infection is lurking in the shadows. These pills are small and easy to swallow as well as not having any taste. Good Luck!

Desperate times call for desperate measures right? I am 53 years old and this is my first UTI...very painful and a 3 day course of cipro was not doing the job completely....so I tried some of the home remedies...and within 30 minutes to an hour I began to feel so much better. First I tried baking soda and water....not tasty...but worth doing as I felt better quickly. An couple of hours later I did the apple cider vinegar, lemon juice from real lemon, and honey combo....again...not tasty...but continued to feel better. I am also taking a probiotic specifically designed for UTI healing. AND....DRINK DRINK DRINK WATER...I added fresh squeezed lemon to keep the vitamin C intake going. I don't think the Cipro antibiotic would have killed the bacteria on it's own...these home remedies have been a life saver for me. Thank goodness for this site and for everyone who posted these suggestions. Feel better everyone.

Maybe leaving sex til marriage with one man, as follows from God's 10 commands, could be a huge preventive.– especially unwise are multiple partners. Sadly, here is such pressure in our current culture to engage in sex as though it is form of recreation rather than a special sacred gift. However there are other sources of UTIs. Helps for women are as suggested by careful cleanliness. But some women just have a natural weakness for UTIs and similar infections. Great ideas shared help us to avoid taking too many antibiotics if wanting to prevent their side effects. Not an easy circumstance. Blessings to all.

Sad that our current culture demands women must have sex freely before marriage to one man and some of this results in UTIs. God set it up otherwise in His Ten Commandments, that sex is a gift those married give each other. Women now seem pressured to make sex part of normal dating or they are considered odd. Sad. UTI 's happen more frequently in that dating expectation, though many other circumstances can be causal. Thus, all this good sharing and advise is so helpful to all who wish to avoid antibiotics, with some AB's having grave side effects & repercussions, but AB's may otherwise be viewed as the only resort for the cure of UTIs. Thanks to all who shared their experience and wisdom.

Do not take acidic products such as fruit juices or lemon juice. The problem with UTI's is that the urine, due to the bacterial growth, has become too alkaline, which is why it burns. Drinking something acidic, like lemon juice, will not help to counterbalance the alkalinity of the urine, because the digestive system converts the acidic quality of the juice into an alkali, which will only make the problem worse. Apple cider vinegar is a different kind of juice, but you must ensure it is organic RAW cider vinegar, not the processed commercial kind found on supermarket shelves...

Oh and all this God/Allah nonsense? Stop it. It's irrational, inaccurate and totally misleading.

UTI's have nothing to do with sex before marriage or only one partner. It is a purely biological/anatomical thing, and nothing to do with morality. Grow up, and get an education. It is utterly ignorant to connect having a UTI with God's alleged opinions of pre-marital sex.

I used to attend a convent and one of the nuns used to get regular UTI's the poor thing. Trust me, it had nothing to do with sex.

Wearing close bulky clothing and synthetic fabrics is also a cause of UTI's.

So much for all this rubbish about sex and God's plan.

Gimme a damn break.

I kept strictly to the food requirements, avoid spicy foods, alcohol, smoking, coffee,etc. But the medicines I took couldn't help to cure it.
